

Jennefer Ludwigsen

Jennefer proudly founded Doorways in 2000 and will lead the 2009 sessions along with members of the 2009 Door Shakespeare acting company. Jennefer has worked with Free Street Programs in Chicago, helping middle school students write and perform their own original plays, and also with the Eileen Boevers Performing Arts Workshop in Highland Park, IL. She has created children's drama programs in Virginia, Seattle, Los Angeles and also taught theatre at Northwestern University and the University of Washington. As a professional actress, Jennefer has appeared with numerous companies in Chicago, including the Apple Tree Theatre and Shaw Chicago. In Door County she has performed with American Folklore Theatre and has been a part of seven seasons with Door Shakespeare. Jennefer received her BSS in Theatre from Northwestern University and her MFA in Acting from the University of Washington's Professional Actor Training Program.

In its sixth season, DOORWAYS is a workshop dedicated to the development of communication skills, creative writing and group social skills through the process of creating original theatre. Our goal is to nurture children's ability to voice their opinions, communicate their thoughts, and ultimately, discover their creativity.

Daily, the students will play theatre and improv games in which leadership is shared by all, making no one a star, but making everyone part of a dynamic group. The drama will carry into a brief creative writing segment that may include free writing, poetry, storytelling and journaling. We will then work to put the written words into performance. Each student will leave the workshop with a writing portfolio. Our work will culminate in a casual performance of the students original work on the last day of class. DOORWAYS also offers a Shakespeare workshop for high school students. This class will focus on the rich poetry of Shakespeare's words using a variety of techniques, monologue and scene work.

An exciting trio of seminars is offered for adults this year, and NEW THIS SEASON: a series of classes for senior citizens.
